In the world of fashion, it’s what’s inside that counts.
What is your company made of?

As a fashion professional, you know that in order to be successful on the outside, you have to have the right mix on the inside. And with over a decade as the industry’s premier source for top freelance and permanent talent, no one understands this more than The Fashion Services Division of the Solomon-Page Group.

PERMANENT SERVICE

Knowing about what’s inside means starting from the inside; having an in-depth and global knowledge of your business that extends beyond reading the latest trend reports. Everyone at SPG has received their education in fashion by working on the front lines of the industry. We all bring our individual talents to the recruitment process, recruiting highly-skilled and uniquely qualified candidates for position at all levels and across virtually every fashion function including design, product development, merchandising and sales.

We understand what we’re looking at and what you’re looking for. Our reach is global. From our offices in New York and London, we travel the world to stay current, not just with the latest trends, but also with the people who set them. We act as an extension of your company, representing your interests and conducting searches according to the highest ethical standards. We are as passionate about the fashion business as you are. If we can’t satisfy your objectives, we won’t take the assignment. We are highly regarded throughout the industry for our quality recruiting service and our market intelligence.

In the end, we want to partner with you, so that we know your business as well as we know ours.

FREELANCE SERVICE

Having the right mix also means understanding the business climate. Freelance, or planned temporary positions, have become an alternate staffing tool of choice, allowing a business to accommodate downturns, upswings, new business opportunities and emergencies, without the long-term investment or commitment.

Our experience as a full-time placement service has given us the opportunity to fully understand our clients and their position in the marketplace, and we leverage that same knowledge and integrity to assist in your freelance talent search. Hiring a freelancer allows you to satisfy a short-term need while also affording you the opportunity to assess the talent and fit of that individual, and see if conversion to a permanent employee will be a benefit to your organization. It’s like a lease with an option to buy.

Professional temporary solutions are today’s smart price/value option.
